SAMPLE QUESTIONS

What do Lou Holtz, Denzel Washington, Scott Adams – And your son, Peter at age 10 – All have in common?

...And other popular questions about the topic, Write it Down, Make it Happen:

- Why does it matter if we write it down, why not just think it, or say it out loud?
- What if you don't know what you want?
- Before you take the first step, often fears come in; how do you handle fears and lack of confidence?
- Creative writing teachers always say, Write every day. Do you have to write your goals out every day?
- Are there any "rules" or ways to do it right?
- Why are we often afraid to ask for what we want?
- What if you write it down and it doesn't happen?
- When things fall into place, is it just co-incidence?
- It sounds too simple; what's the key?
- Should you share your goals or keep them to yourself until they happen?
- Why do you tell people to get near water to write?
- How can "polishing coconuts" help others play along to make my dream a reality?
